Glen Cove Mansion Hotel Introduces the GOcation Getaway

Get away to the Fabulous L.I. Gold Coast without Going Too Far or Paying too Much!

Glen Cove, New York, June 2009 ... The award-winning Glen Cove Mansion Hotel has just introduced a package for everyone who wants to get away for a relaxed summer mini-vacation without going too far or paying too much. It's called the GOcation Getaway and it includes many amenities expected at some of the nation's finest resorts.

Glen Cove Mansion was built 100 years ago as the country house for the famous New York Pratt Family of Standard Oil renown. Still an ideal "country escape" so close to New York City, the estate's original 55 acres remain and are available to guests to enjoy for nature walks, biking, and garden excursions.

Even the Mansion's original outdoor pool, sun terraces, and summer house pavilion remain and are for guests to enjoy. An indoor pool and sun deck are also available.

There is so much more to do at Glen Cove Mansion, which features tennis courts, basketball courts, an exercise & fitness room, and walking & biking trails. Up in the Mansion's third floor Pub 1910 (in honor of the year the Mansion opened) is shuffleboard, darts, foosball, pool tables, large screen televisions and stunning views of Long Island Sound.

In each of Glen Cove Mansion's guestrooms are OnCommand Movies, a Stationary I-Home for I-Pods, and Complimentary high-speed Internet access. Spa services are also available with advance notice.

As a destination, Glen Cove Mansion's setting -- the Long Island Gold Coast -- is renowned globally for its extravagant Gilded Age history, much of which is close to Glen Cove Mansion. This includes several other Gold Coast mansions (five Pratt family mansions still exist) and Morgan's Island, as well as President Theodore Roosevelt's home and Summer White House, Sagamore Hill, located one town over in Oyster Bay. Additionally, the famed estate, Planting Fields and Arboretum, is located in nearby Oyster Bay, and the extraordinary Old Westbury Gardens, featured in the recent Doris Duke bio-pic, Bernard & Doris, is a completely intact Gold Coast estate whose mansion with original furnishings and extraordinary gardens are open to the public.

Glen Cove Mansion's GLocation Getaway is available through August 31st, 2009, and is just $159 per room per night. For more information or for reservations, please call 516-671-6400 or visit www.glencovemansion.com.
